

IRISH REGIMENT FOR THE WAR.—
F. C. FITZGIBBON, Esq., who was lately removed from the office of Mail Agent, on the D. & M. R. R., is organizing a Regiment of Irishmen to serve during the war. He is meeting with encouraging success, and his numbers are rapidly increasing. He has had a military experience, as well as education, to a degree not usual among our citizens—thus fitting him for the responsible position his friends have called him to assume.

In the varied changes from day to day attracting the attention of lookers-on, the thought that “there is a divinity that shapes our ends” must apply to the individual, whatever his position may be, in the rushing tide of the affairs of men. To Lieut. Col. FITZGIBBON, we tender the hearty, well-wishing of a friend. The reliance we feel in his capacity and ability for success is based upon a personal intimacy of no ordinary degree.
